WEATHER HALTS TWO OPENERS IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Boston-New York, Philadelphia-Brooklyn Tilts Postponed

DETROIT TO OPPOSE CLEVELAND INDIANS

President Roosevelt To Throw First Ball At Washington

With the weather anything but typical in many cities, forcing the postponement of two games, the 1933 major league baseball campaign was being ushered in this afternoon.

Indians Face Tigers
Salem's favorites, the Cleveland Indians, were scheduled to battle the Detroit Tigers at Navin field, Detroit, with Clint Brown on the mound for the tribe and Tom Bridges throwing them up for the foe.

"Rain and cold" was the weather outlook for the battle.

The clash between the world championship New York Yankees and the lowly Boston Red Sox was postponed when rain virtually flooded the Gotham stadium while showers halted the slated contest between two National leaguers, the Brooklyn Robins and Philadelphia Phillies at Philadelphia.

White at Cincinnati
It was clear, but cool at Cincinnati where Gov. George White and other members of Ohio's "official family" were to be guests of honor. The Reds will oppose the Pittsburgh Pirates.

More than 100,000 of the nation's baseball mad fans were expected to heed the order of "Let's all go to the ball game!" and flock into those parks where the weather is not sufficiently inclement to force postponements.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was to don his overcoat and play an important role at the inaugural classic at Washington between the Senators and the Philadelphia Athletics. The President was to toss out the first ball, officially opening the season.

Mayors, governors, senators, congressmen and other officials who may not attend another game all season will be present to participate in inaugural ceremonies without which, it appears, no season can be officially opened.

It's a great day for the lover of America's national pastime.

Salem Magicians Sponsor Program

An entertainment featuring a program of magic by Thomas & King, Youngstown magicians, will be staged by Salem's newly organized Magic Council at the Moose lodge hall, East State st., at 8:15 p. m. Friday.

It is the first entertainment undertaken by the Magic Council now composed of 35 members with George Wright as president. The Salem club is said by Wright to be the largest of its type in the world, has its own library, an orchestra and is making steady progress in study of magic, the president reported.

Charles G. Leedy, Youngstown columnist and humorist, may also participate in the program of entertainment. Several other members of the Youngstown Magic club will attend the meeting.

Admission to the entertainment is by invitation.

LA FALCI FREED ON $7,500 BOND

7 Property Owners Aid Man Accused In Drug Store Robbery

LISBON, April 12—James LaFalconi, 31, of Akron, who has been held at the county jail here in default of $7,500 bond, was released Tuesday afternoon, when Robert H. Brooks of East Liverpool, one of counsel for La Falcioni presented seven men and women to Clerk of Courts John A. Noble as surety.

La Falcioni was charged before Mayor J. M. Davidson at Salem for robbing the Peoples Service Drug Co. store at Salem the morning of March 29 of $89 in money and one electric clock of the value of $2.59.

Soon after La Falcioni's commitment to the county jail, effort to have the $7,500 bond reduced by Judge W. F. Lones failed.

Four Salem residents who signed the bond are Joe and Mary Arment, Carmea Nocero and Theresa Nocero. Others who signed are Carmelo Aulino and Mrs. Rose Aulino and Moriano Onli, of Akron. An abstract of property in Summit county owned by the Akron sureties has been filed with the bond.

Reduction of the bond was opposed by Prosecuting Attorney George L. Lafferty when Attorney Charles McCorkhill of Salem made application to the court.

The case of La Falcioni is one of 30 odd cases that will be investigated by the grand jury next week. In the event of an indictment, the defendant will be required to give a new bond.

Two Easter Egg Hunts Scheduled

Salem kiddies under six years of age will have an Easter egg hunt all of their own this year.

Boys and girls under that age will gather at Rolly stadium at 9:30 a. m. Saturday to hunt several hundred eggs which will be hidden away by J. M. Kelley, director of community activities at the Memorial building.

Youngsters between six and 14 years old will, at the same hour, stage a search for eggs at Centennial park.

Additional requests for eggs of any kind were made today by Kelley who hopes to hide away more than 100 dozen. More than 500 youngsters are expected to participate in the two hunts.

Hands-Off Policy Is Lawyer's View In Japan Problem

Att'y. Franklin B. Powers of Youngstown believes United States should adopt a hands-off policy with respect to Japan in the Far East.

He offered this suggestion in a talk before the Salem Rotary club Tuesday in which he discussed the Manchurian situation and gave a review of Japan's conquests to extend her possessions and power. Japan believes the United States and some European nations are not sincere in their ideals as set up for Japan to follow. Particularly is this true with respect to this country, he said.

Japan's pride was hurt when the United States barred her citizens from this country, that act being construed as intimating that the yellow race is inferior to the white race.

Powers recommended that this country should not offend Japan, for it is not attempting nor does it contemplate a conquest of this country, he said. The speaker was introduced by E. Mason Wick.

Coroner Returns Suicide Verdict In Kibler Death

A verdict of death resulting from a self-inflicted bullet wound was returned today by Coroner Ernest R. Sturgis of Wellsville in the death of Sherman Kibler, 66, of East Rochester.

Kibler was found at his home by a son, P. S. Kibler, lying on the floor of the kitchen in an unconscious condition from a shotgun wound in his head. Despondency over ill health is given by Sturgis as the cause.

Born in West township, Columbiana county, Mr. Kibler had spent his entire life in this vicinity. He was a member of the Christian church at East Rochester.

Surviving him are a brother, Henry of Kensington; a sister, Mrs. George Kelly of east of Minerva; five sons, P. S., at the home, C. L. of Esmond, N. Dak., Vincent of Minerva, C. E. of Bayard and Austin of Cleveland, and 20 grandchildren. His wife preceded him in death five years ago.

Private funeral service will be held at Vincent Kibler's home in Minerva at 2 p. m. Thursday. Burial will be made in Moultrie chapel.

Members of the Sons of Union Veterans and the auxiliary of Salem will entertain Friday at a district from Alliance, Youngstown, East meeting here. Guests are expected from Liverpool and East Palestine.

TEACHERS COME TO SCHOOLS' AID

Columbiana Instructors Offer Service Free for Two Weeks

COLUMBIANA, April 12—With teachers offering their services free for two weeks, the Columbiana public school term will in all probability be continued for a total of eight and one-half months, members of the board of education announced today.

Board members had planned to close schools May 26, lacking funds to continue in operation for a longer period. The voluntary offer by principals and teachers, however, today made it appear probable that the term will extend until June 2.

Teachers, in a meeting this week adopted the following resolution: "We, the teachers of Columbiana public schools feel that the pupils should not be deprived of educational training because of the temporary financial situation. Therefore we agree to give, if necessary, two weeks of service in order to complete eight and one-half months of school."

America's A Bit Astonished When Shaw Dispenses Some Verbal Roses

"Hopes" U. S. May Take Lead In Saving Civilization From Totttering Into the Abyss

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 12—America, long accustomed to hear George Bernard Shaw call it a land of boobs, was a bit astonished today to find a large shavian bouquet in its lap.

Lecturing an American audience face to face for the first time, the Irish author said last night that the United States may possibly take the lead in saving civilization from tottering into the abyss as did Babylon, Rome and other civilizations of the past.

Cabbages accompany roses. A rain of verbal compliments was showered on the Irishman by financiers who are "95 per cent lunatics," that they worship a "monstrous idol" called the Statue of Liberty and that they live under a constitution which is nothing but a "charter of anarchy."

But he celebrated the passing of the "ridiculous 100 per cent American," that "man who talked so splendidly and had nothing to say" and he dealt on "a curious public instinct, a social feeling" which "may turn out to be a 'volcanic political genius.'"

NEFF DEFENSE CITES HARMONY IN HOME LIFE

12 Witnesses Testify That Canfield Man and Wife Lived Happily

SECRETARY WILL TAKE STAND TODAY

Expected to Deny Charge She Was Intimate With Defendant

The court fight to prove Cyrus H. Neff, 51, of Canfield, not guilty of the first degree murder charge in the fatal shooting of his wife last October was reaching its climax in Youngstown today with counsel for the defense promising to reveal "surprise" testimony of a "sensational nature" either this afternoon or Thursday.

Seeking to refute previous testimony offered by the state, 12 witnesses Tuesday offered evidence that Mr. and Mrs. Neff lived an harmonious and happy life, while this afternoon Mrs. Alice Overholzer, Neff's secretary, was to take the stand and deny statements made early in the trial that she was seen with her arms around the accused.

Charges Revenge Motive
Mrs. Overholzer's testimony will be given in refutation of that made by a former employee of Neff whom, she claimed, was discharged by him for drunkenness.

Neff, who was expected to testify in his own behalf yesterday, will not be called to the stand until Thursday or Friday and, according to his attorneys, will not be called unless absolutely necessary. A motion that the charge against him be dismissed for lack of evidence will be filed with the court within the next 28 hours, Neff's counsel said.

Among those expected to be called as character witnesses or to testify as to the harmonious relationship of the Neffs are County Commissioner Ames Mellinger, County Surveyor George Montgomery, Thad Rose, Postmaster Jones of Canfield, Clyde Dixon of the county treasurer's office.

Saturday Limit On Personal Returns

LISBON, April 12—County Auditor John H. Irwin today announced that a warning had been issued by the state tax commission that only this week remains for making the 1933 annual return of intangibles property for taxation. Saturday is the last day.

The dead line for making returns was March 31, but this time was extended by the state commission to April 15, under authority of a recent act of the general assembly.

After that date the penalty of 50 per cent for failure to make returns within the specified time will apply, and cannot be remitted but only reduced by the subsequent filing of a return.

"The 15 day extension is an expense to the state and to all the counties," State Commissioner A. J. Kraus, in charge of the intangible division, said Monday, "for the reason that the division and the county auditors are carrying their peak load during the tax listing period. The longer this period is extended, the greater the cost."

From the standpoint of economy, as well as from avoiding the heavy penalty, it is desirable that the taxpayers make their returns without waiting until the last few days."

Girder in Airship Akron Was to Have Been Repaired Officer Says at Hearing

Structure Was To Have Been Strengthened at Spot Where, Survivors Say, Girders Broke

(By Associated Press)
LAKEHURST, N. J., April 12.—Lieutenant Commander Edwin F. Cochrane, assembly and repair officer at the naval air station, today testified at the naval hearing on the loss of the Akron, that it had been planned, on her return from the last flight, to strengthen the ship's structure in the area in which two of the survivors said they saw two longitudinal girders break. One of those girders was to have been strengthened, he said.

5 A. M. Thursday Tentative Time For Macon's Test

AKRON, O., April 12—Tentative zero hour for the maiden flight of the U. S. S. Macon today was set at 5 a. m. Thursday by Captain Alger H. Dresel, the ship's skipper. Captain Dresel announced the tentative zero hour after conferences with his weather men, headed by Lieutenant Anthony L. Danis, aerological officer of the ship.

"We will not be able to say definitely that the ship will fly until tonight's weather maps have been studied," Captain Dresel added. "Comparatively stable air is sought for the first flight and we must have further assurance this will prevail."

No announcement will be made of a flight itinerary, Captain Dresel said. He wishes to be free to take the ship wherever the conditions most suitable to her maiden trial are to be found.

MAYOR ACCEPTS 10 PER CENT CUT

Announces Voluntary Reduction Retroactive To March 1

Mayor J. M. Davidson today announced he had voluntarily reduced his salary by placing into effect a 10 per cent cut.

The information was contained in a letter to L. R. Cobb, chairman of the finance committee of city council.

The mayor's action is in line with that of other municipal officials of the elective classification. The salaries and wages of appointive employees were reduced some time ago by action of council, the reduction having become effective March 1.

The reduction in Mayor Davidson's salary is made effective from the same period inasmuch as Davidson is returning a check for $17 to cover the decrease for the month of March.

His letter to Cobb follows: "In line with the economy program, I hereby voluntarily consent to a 10 per cent reduction of the salary of the mayor from the amount received in the last part of the year 1932. This reduction is to be effective as of March 1, 1933."

"I am returning herewith to the treasury my personal check for $17 to cover the reduction for the month of March, 1933."

Bible Play Marks Holy Week Services

"St. Claudia," famed religious drama, portraying the Biblical characters of Pontius Pilate, Lazarus, Judas Iscariot and others, will be presented under auspices of Methodist, Presbyterian and Christian churches at the high school auditorium tonight.

An attractive musical program, arranged by Robert L. Wright and J. W. Hundertmark, will be given during intermissions.

The play and musical entertainment will be repeated Thursday night with performances each evening at 8. A free will offering will be taken to defray expenses of the production. Dress rehearsal was held last night at the school hall. Tuesday evening Rev. C. F. Evans spoke at the union service held at the Methodist church. His subject was "What Think You of Christ?"

Four Acquitted In Altar Death of Aged "Human Sacrifice"

LIFE SENTENCE FOR JOHN MILLS

Ballard Mills, Blaine McGinnis Are Given 21 Years Apiece

(By Associated Press)
INEZ, Ky., April 12—John H. Mills, Ballard Mills, and Blaine McGinnis were convicted in the Mills "human sacrifice" case by a jury here today, and Mrs. Mollie McGinnis and Mrs. Ora Moore were acquitted. The punishment of John H. Mills was fixed at life imprisonment, and sentences of 21 years each were fixed on Ballard Mills and Blaine McGinnis.

Out Two and a Half Hours
The jury deliberated two and a half hours before reaching a verdict. The jury had acquitted two other defendants in the case, Fred Mills and Tommie Boyd, against whom Circuit Judge J. F. Bailey said there was no evidence.

No emotion was shown by the defendants when the verdict was read.

The jury received the case last night after having heard evidence since last Saturday. All the defendants had been accused of murder and conspiracy in the slaying of Mrs. Lucinda Mills, 67, in a mountain cabin near Tomahawk, Ky., February 8. Mrs. Mills' death, testimony showed, climaxed a weird religious exercises of a cult headed by John H. Mills, her son. The other defendants, except Ballard Mills, 19, a grandson, were sons, daughters, or sons-in-law and daughters-in-law of the victim.

Labeled "Cold Blooded Murder"
Commonwealth Attorney J. B. Clark had termed the slaying of Mrs. Mills on an improvised "altar" as "cold blooded murder" but did not ask for the death penalty. Harry F. Ramsey, defense counsel, said John H. Mills was "stark mad" and the other defendants were under a "hypnotic spell" at the time.

DECRIES WAR IN SOUTH AMERICA

Roosevelt Calls for Steps Toward Peace In Pan American Talk

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 12—Existing warfare in South America was condemned today by President Roosevelt as a "backward step," in a speech commemorating Pan American day.

The President took the occasion to propose that the American governments initiate individual steps promptly to "abolish all unnecessary artificial barriers and restrictions which now hamper the healthy flow of trade between the peoples of the American republics."

Extols Spirit of Unity
Addressing a special session of the governing board of the Pan American union, Mr. Roosevelt extolled the spirit of unity among the American republics.

"In this spirit of mutual understanding and of cooperation on this continent," he said, "you and I can not fail to be disturbed by any armed strife between neighbors."

"I do not hesitate to say to you, the distinguished members of the governing board of the Pan American union, that I regard existing

Some New Ads

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 12—Some sort of handclapping is due the Republican newspapers for their generous support of the administration. For nothing is as bull-headed as a party newspaper, be it Republican or Democratic.

People are the first to forget party lines, newspapers are the last. This is a lesson in generosity to Democratic papers.

And talking about newspapers, return of beer must have given some new advertising men a job, for never was there as attractive and intelligent ads in the papers as these new beer ads. Finally we are seeing something as an ad beside a pretty girl smoking a cigarette.

DUE WARNING

Wall Street isn't quoting odds on the answers that will be given by a majority of students in more than 700 American colleges on the question of participating in a war. Contrary to the oath of citizenship and the tireless efforts of militant patriots, the students will cast a vote against participation—at least they will if they are permitted to vote their own opinions without instructions from their professorial guardians.

The students canvassed will be able to vote on one of three declarations. The most radical, the one which will be pointed to with alarm by the patriotic societies, is a pledge not to participate in any war of whatever origin or nature. It contains, furthermore, a promise to work actively for organization of the world on a peace basis. The ballots for the poll are being distributed by the Intercollegiate Disarmament Council.

Another declaration will offer an easy compromise to the developing pacifist who isn't ready yet to turn radical. It pledges the signer to participate in no war, unless the mainland of the United States is invaded. It does not plan a course of action in case the United States is threatened with invasion, however. Since that is the essential thing to consider, this declaration, like the previous one, is an open avowal of absolute refusal to bear arms.

In Oxford and other English universities a great to-do was started when students pledged themselves not to risk death for the British empire under any conditions. Old graduates ran up a bull market in white feathers trying to convey to the younger generation exactly what they thought of such lily-livered cowards. Solid Britishers were appalled at the creations of their handiwork—a student class which loves life more than country.

When American students have registered their will in this matter, President Roosevelt and congress will be informed of their decision. Fortunately, statesmen are inclined to be sympathetic with the peace ideals of the growing generation. The trouble is that everyone agrees on preserving peace until it is threatened with war.

LITTLE UTOPIA

Senator Norris has had long practice introducing bills providing for the government's operation of its valuable power-producing properties at Muscle Shoals in the Tennessee River valley. Eleven years ago he introduced one. He tried it 10 years ago. At no time in the last decade has he abandoned his dream of putting government into the power business with the great wartime plant built at Muscle Shoals. And at no time in the last decade has he escaped disappointment. His resolutions, approved sometimes in one house, sometimes in the other and on two occasions by both, have never been enacted into law.

It is entirely fitting that this good fighter, who was moved to tears by the promise of victory for his tireless campaign when Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected, should be given the honor of introducing the bill to carry out the President's ambitious development project in the Tennessee River basin. An integral part of the executive's plan is federal operation of Muscle Shoals, which then will become the first "yardstick" by which rates of privately owned and operated electric utilities will be measured.

The Tennessee project is the vision of a dreamer. To date, it represents the most forward-looking proposal of a practical President. Through all the hurly-burly of unsettled times he has held dear his conception of an Utopia to be created in the potentially fertile and wealthy Tennessee valley. It would not be done as a special favor to any one region but as a sign to Americans and to the world that planning on a broad scale can create economic magic.

These are the alluring proportions of the dream. The facts may be less pleasant. Two presidents have vetoed bills for federal operation of Muscle Shoals, for what seemed to them and an important body of opinion good and sufficient reasons. Perhaps there has been a reversal of thought since then. It will be one of President Roosevelt's tasks to sell his idea to the people whose money and governmental policies are involved. Most of the opposition will be recruited from those who do not believe that socialism is advanced enough to put government into the power business.

What Others Say

WE NEED NOT BE SO MEEK

A salutary effect would soon be perceptible in the affairs of our government if we could rid ourselves of the idea that all conditions are as inflexible as those connected with the weather—about which everybody talks, but nobody does anything.

We constantly bemoan the extravagance of the administration of this country's business, but make no more effort to stop it than we make to head off a cyclone or to clear up a rainy day. Very significant is the following report in a recent issue of "The Nation's Business": "In the St. Joseph Livestock exchange the department of agriculture maintains a force of seven persons in the market news service at a cost of about $25,000 a year. Before the department of agriculture took over the market news service at this exchange, the secretary and one clerk did all the work at a cost of $2,400 a year." The expenses of this department in the past 20 years have increased about $300,000,000. We commiserate ourselves on the oppressive taxes contingent upon extravagance of this kind. We talk about it, but nobody does anything about it. And we could do something about it.—Newark Advocate.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, April 13

A particularly lively and interesting day is forecast from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects of the planets, yet there will be need of much sagacity, discretion and wise management of the affairs in order to sidestep difficulties, complications, turbulent situations and probably treacheries both sinister and openly hostile. This baneful situation may best be handled by tact and diplomacy in all contacts rather than reckless, impetuous and quarrelsome conduct.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a particularly lively and exciting year, with much stirring to call for calm deliberation and wise manipulation of affairs, both business and private. A child born on this day may be versatile and brilliant but may have a very contradictory nature, calling for much self-restraint and control.

Notable nativity: James Harper, founder Harper Bros.

PETERSBURG, Ind.—Mrs. Norman Payne suffered a deep cut on the head when a stove pipe fell on her after she poured coal oil into the fire. Other members of the family were jolted out of bed by the blast.

"No Pay—No Fair" Say Teachers

Unpaid school teachers of Chicago threw a monkey wrench into the dedication ceremonies of the official World's Fair flag, when they staged a demonstration of their own. Here is the scene as a throng of teachers and their sympathizers demanded that they receive their back pay before the city spends money on the Century of Progress opening. Their appearance on the scene made short work of the flag ceremonies.

Roosevelt's Forestry Army Lives by the Bugle

Regulation Army Routine Prevails in Camps Where Conservation Corps Recruits Are Conditioned for Reforestation Program.

PAINTING PINE SEEDLINGS

REFORESTATION ROOKIES AT CONDITIONING EXERCISE

In dozens of camps all over the country, thousands of young men between the ages of 18 and 25 are getting a taste of real army life, getting up to the bugle and going to bed to the bugle, even eating the tan-tar-ra-ra of the bugle. They are members of the Civilian Conservation Corps, or, as it is more familiarly known, the reforestation army, recruited from amongst the unemployed to participate in the gigantic forestry program inaugurated by President Roosevelt.

Under capable U. S. Army instructors, the men are undergoing a preliminary "conditioning" period before starting the actual work for which they are intended. During this training period, strict army discipline is maintained. The men are roused by the strains of reveille at 5:55 a. m., breakfast on scrambled eggs, coffee and toast (sometimes cereal and bacon are included), after which the business of the day begins. First they are given a series of setting up exercises under army instructors.

Then they attend a series of lectures on forestry. These lectures are given by experts on the subject who have been recruited from among the jobless. Then there is time out for recreation. Football and baseball facilities are provided, as well as a gymnasium. At Fort Slocum, New Rochelle, N. Y., where nearly 2,000 recruits are encamped, the forestry army is a happy family, included in the list of rookies are at least one sculptor, storekeeper, postal clerk, telegraph operator, blacksmith, barbers and electricians. After the men have completed their course, they will be graded according to qualifications. Some will be appointed clerks, some foremen, but the great majority will be laborers, who will do the actual work of planting and transplanting trees.

NEW YORK, April 12—A glittery barber shop near the Strand theater is the hopper for many of the street's choicest wise-cracks. Its patronage is largely among song writers, gag men for vaudeville, revues and movies as well as sundry minds shorn by the city's pavements.

Many of tomorrow's hilarities are incubated there. Customers include Irving Caesar, Lew Pollack, Ballard MacDonald, Jack Benny, Lou Holtz, Jack Osterman and others of the crack adlibbers. The solemn-faced head barber, Bill, is Salvador, as a stooge.

The customary placidity of the average barber shop may in sudden mirthquake erupt in a "strolling through the park" formation and an "off to Buffalo" out the door without paying the cashier. Or some may sit on a manicure girl's knee to phone his wife he will be late because of a "tough day at the office."

"An innocent stranger, wandering in, is often horrified by witnessing a mock stabbing affray at his chair-side. Calls over dead phones will be put in for Hollywood stars while eyes pop at imaginary conversations. It is all incredibly mad but the exquisite fooling is about the biggest laugh on Broadway.

The one-time target for militant youth's most violent hatred is often seen around the Players. He is Reggie Birch, who created the popular velvet-jacketed and ass-like conception of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" years ago. Another illustrator who created a wide-world character and is still around is Frederick Steele. He first drew Sherlock Holmes with his plaid overcoat, wide awake hat, bulldog pipe and large magnifying glass.

Whitney Warren, the heavy-thewed architect, is one of the city's most spectacular dressers. He favors heavy double-breasted waistcoats in cream or white linen, colored polo shirts open at the neck and complemented by a white scarf, loosely folded over and pinned with a jeweled clasp. Barging along Madison ave., every noonday—a sort of Grant's Tomb looking winsome—he suggests Mussolini with a shock of white hair.

Raymond Hitchcock was the last of the grey bowler wearers until Alfred de Laigue, Jr., a newcomer in theatrical producing ranks, appeared. He is a Yale man and sports the bowler on ceremonial occasions.

Another perky derbyist was the late Tommy Gray, whose mots convulsed the Riato a dozen years ago, returning from London one autumn so hatted. He was a member of the noonday collection of clowns that knotted at the old Claridge corner. Karl Kitchen and I joined the group one midday and the late Marcus Loew and Lee Shubert passed in earnest conversation. Tommy looked up, called out quickly: "Hi Lee, Hi Loew!" and went on with his light patter.

In driving through a forlorn reach of the Bronx the other evening there were several blocks almost completely abandoned. In the dusk they seemed to be factories of some sort. A policeman explained they were once devoted to manufacturing pianos. "The radio!" he said with significant shrug.

The Bronx, of all boroughs, is mellow the simplicity of an older period. No other section gives forth such a feeling of laundered permanence. There is the suggestion of neighborliness and incurable passion for old fashioned beat-the-carpet-in-the-back-yard housekeeping. Oddly enough, about the only writer to use the Bronx as a locale for fiction was young Vina Delmar.

I noticed John Ringling, tanned and invigorated by his Sarasota siesta, prowling around the cluster of art galleries in 57th st. the other day. "Mister Jaw'n", as he is known to the big tops, seems in fair fettle for the circus season. A year ago his days were thought numbered.

The famous Palace doorman, during that theater's reign as ace house of vaudeville, is now doorman at the R. K. O. Roxy. He is Fred Rail, who knows by sight every big time variety player of the past 25 years.

Frederick Sullens reports Grandma Perkins, 90, as still counting her blessings on Fossom Toot Ridge. "Thank the Lord," she told him, "I still have two teeth left and they hit. I can't chew much on vittles, but I'm right good at tearin'."

ANDERSON, Ind.—Fifteen-month-old Billy David Leever is in serious condition here from drinking half an ounce of turpentine. The bottle was handed to him by his three-year-old sister, who was unaware of its danger.

SCARBORO, Me.—Gully, C. M. Witham's house cat, has observed its 22nd birthday anniversary. Though a centenarian, judged by feline standards of longevity, Gully is still remarkably spry.

HEALTH

Muscular Aches Confusing
Most persons have heard a lot about rheumatism. Either they have suffered from the disease or know of others who are chronic sufferers. Although tremendous strides have been made in the treatment of rheumatism, the disease still continues to be a great menace to health. It is a menace because of the serious complications that result from the ailment.

The word "rheumatism" is greatly abused, misused and misapplied. It is commonly used to describe symptoms which are really caused by neuritis, arthritis, neuralgia, and other afflictions of muscles and joints.

It is a disease which afflicts children as well as adults. In children it is often confused with so-called "growing pains."

Rheumatic Fever
In one form the disease is known as "acute rheumatic fever." The sufferer has a high fever, sweats freely and complains of severe pain in the joints. This may be so severe that the slightest vibration or movement produces excruciating suffering.

Victims of this disease should remain in bed until all symptoms and fever disappear. The inflamed joints should be fixed in a comfortable position. This can be done with pillows or by wrapping the joint firmly in layers of cotton batting, or by a well-fitted, padded splint or wood, or light plaster.

The diet should be simple and contain sufficient calories to prevent any loss of weight. Fluids should be taken freely to replace the fluid lost by excessive sweating. Internal medicine for the relief of pain and fever must be prescribed by the physician. The pain should be controlled so that the sufferer may obtain rest. Restful sleep lessens the pain and gives the sufferer strength to overcome his siege of illness.

Children afflicted with this disease should remain in bed for a period of two or three months after the acute signs have disappeared. Involvement of the heart is a common complication of acute rheumatic fever in children. Complete rest in bed minimizes this danger. Though it is difficult to keep a child in bed for this length of time, I strongly recommend that this plan be followed if possible.

Remove Center of Infection
Every effort should be made to remove all centers of infection. Infected tonsils, infected teeth, sinuses and other foci of infection within the body, tend to prolong or to bring about a recurrence of this disease. Diseased tonsils and teeth should never be removed during the acute attack. It is best to wait until the acute symptoms of the disease have subsided.

Avoid damp places and exposure to cold and wet. The sufferer from rheumatism benefits by plenty of fresh air, sunshine and good food. Rheumatic fever is almost unknown in tropical and sub-tropical climates. Of course, southern weather is ideal for the victims of this disease.

Recently experimental work has been conducted with vaccines. These are made from bacteria taken from the throats of patients with acute rheumatic fever and those convalescing from the disease. The vaccine is injected into the tissues of the sufferer. The results have been gratifying in a few cases. It is hoped that the vaccine will be perfected and a reliable cure discovered for this painful and dreaded affliction.

One purseful of opportunities . . .

The opportunities, to which we refer, are the daily bargains to be found in every shopping area. Some people find them quite by chance . . . stumble over them blindly . . . and acquire them with astonishment. Others never seem to be in the right store at the right time: If there's a 25% marked-down sale of shoes at Smith's, they are at Brown & Co. . . If a grocer three blocks away is clearing out his canned goods at half-price, they are at the corner store making routine purchases.

But there are some people who always find these opportunities. Their money buys them more—and better—merchandise than their neighbors'. Why? Not through good luck, you may be sure; but simply because these people read the advertisements in their daily newspapers.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

by WARWICK DEEPING

SYNOPSIS

Young Dr. John Wolfe arrives at the quaint town of Little Navestock to become Dr. Montague Threadgold's assistant. Though shabby of dress, the young doctor's bearing commands respect. Dr. Threadgold is very affable but his wife, who judges from outward appearances, considers Wolfe a "raw hawk of a man" and treats him coolly. Sir George Griggs arrives with a dislocated shoulder. He is infuriated over Dr. Threadgold's clumsy treatment and turns to young Wolfe who skillfully sets the shoulder. Later, Dr. Threadgold tells his wife that Wolfe has some ability but is a little forward. Dr. Threadgold attends the prosperous patients and assigns his assistant to the poor section of town. The young physician realizes the pitiable plight of these people in hands of a bungling doctor. He is shocked at the unsanitary conditions in the alleys and starts an investigation. Dr. Threadgold, ignorant of this, is well satisfied with his assistant, and Mrs. Threadgold now considers him a very passable person.

CHAPTER NINE

It was on a March day that a message came in from Moor Farm on the northern edge of Turling Moor. Dr. Threadgold was out and Wolfe at work in the dispensary making up physic. The maid took Mrs. Mascall's note to Mrs. Threadgold in such matters when Dr. Montague gold, who exerted her jurisdiction was absent. She thought she was Mrs. Sophia had a shrewd knowledge of the neighborhood, and had an experienced finger for the pulse of the local pride. To send an understrapper into certain houses would be an act of indecent folly.

Mrs. Threadgold decided that Wolfe could deal with the case in question. Mrs. Mascall was a fat, good-tempered old person. Montague could drive up tomorrow, and the Mascalls were abominably healthy.

"Sykes, take this note to Mr. Wolfe, and tell him to attend to it at once."

"Yes, ma'am."

And Wolfe had his orders.

Threadgold kept a spare horse for his assistant's use, and since the animal had been broken to both saddle and trap, Wolfe, who preferred the saddle to the little old black-and-yellow-wheeled gig, rode out for Turling Moor. It was a clear, still afternoon, and Navestock lay like a toy town in the valley below. The Lombardy poplars beyond Josiah Crabbe's house at the end of West Street looked like the stiff wooden trees from a child's Noah's ark. Wolfe passed Beech Hill, Turrell, the brewer's pretentious battlemented house. It was a great white building set in the midst of beautifully kept grass and splendid trees, but the house reminded Wolfe of a fat man in a white waistcoat. The windows of Beech Hill overlooked Navestock town, and Wolfe wondered whether Jasper Turrell realized how his tenants lived down by the river. The brewer made a boast of everything that belonged to Beech Hill, but no one would have mentioned Bung Row at his dinner table. In all probability very few of the local gentry remembered that such a place as Bung Row existed.

Moor Farm was a group of red-brick, red-tiled buildings set on the first rise-spur of Turling Moor. It was a grazing farm, and its grasslands swept in green slopes towards the valley of the Wraith. A white gate opened into the home paddock where geese gagged and a fat, brown pony nosed the grass. The house faced the south, with orchard and garden ground gathered about it, the byres, barns, and cattle ledges standing towards the north. Two huge cypresses grew in the garden in front of the house, their dusky spires visible for miles above and outlines of the moor.

Moor Farm itself was a long, low house with casement windows, stone mullions, and a great, brick porch. A mellow and homely solidity possessed it. Standing within a stone's throw, it threw back the southwest throw of the wild and primitive wind from its walls and roof, and glimmered its casements in the sunlight. Holly hedges, eight feet high and a yard thick, stood squarely round the orchard and the garden. A brick terrace ran along the front of the house, with grass below it that was kept sleek and smooth. Wolfe whistled to a boy, who was carrying a bucket across the paddock and the youngster ran to hold the doctor's horse. A path paved with rough stone slabs led to the porch. Moss and grass grew between the stones, and in one place the roots of one of the cypresses had lifted the flags. There were flower borders under the house, full of old-fashioned black velvet and old gold gillyflowers. Lent lilies, and London pride. The date 1878 was carved on a stone set into the brick face of the porch.

Wolfe had his hand on the iron ball-pull when the oak door swung open, and he found himself looking into the eyes of a tall girl whose black hair fell over her shoulders. Lithe, dark, and alert, she had come sailing down the broad oak stairs, hair flying, brown eyes full of a glitter of haste.

The door was hardly open when Wolfe saw the girl's face change its expression. There was a mobility about her that was quick and free as the sunlight over the moor.

"I thought Dr. Threadgold—Are you a doctor?"

"I am Dr. Threadgold's assistant."

The girl had no self-consciousness. She was an intense and rather passionate young person, whose pale face radiated an impetuous sincerity. She looked at Wolfe with un-suppressed displeasure, and kept one hand on the edge of the door.

"We went for Dr. Threadgold—"

"Dr. Threadgold was out. I came to see if I could be of any use."

The girl's eyes looked into Wolfe's eyes. For the moment she appeared to challenge him, and to stand waiting at the doorway of her intuition. Wolfe looked back at her with a frankness that did not intend to suffer a repulse.

"It is Mrs. Mascall who is ill, is it not?"

The girl still seemed to be waiting for some decisive impression.

"Yes."

"I have left my horse at the gate. If you prefer to wait three or four hours I can ride back to Navestock and send Dr. Threadgold over."

She looked at him fixedly. There was the faintest glimmer of amusement in the man's eyes.

"That sounds silly."

"It does, doesn't it?"

She began to smile.

"You know—I felt—"

"Of course you did."

"Dr. Threadgold's young—his assistants—"

"Young fools—shall we say?"

"I never meant that."

"Say fools and we will shake hands on it."

She stepped back with a frank, girlish laugh and let him in. Impetuously was part of her nature. She was a moor child, bred to galloping ponies and the rush of the wind.

"I'll run up and tell mother. Oh, I say, what's your name?"

The quip took them at the same moment.

"Wolfe! Well, I did my best."

"I'm a tame one. People don't trouble to slam the door."

THE DAY IN SPORTS

FIX DISTRICT SCHEDULE
CHOP TOURNEY EXPENSES

THE SCHEDULE of Northeastern Ohio track and field, golf, tennis and baseball tournament, started for May 5 and 6 and May 13 was announced today by H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic association.

The southern N. E. O. track and field meet will be held at Hayen High field, Youngstown, in charge of Coach H. W. Lamsack on May 13 with Salem as defending champion. Floyd A. Rowe of Cleveland is named to take charge of the northern N. E. O. meet at Cleveland on the same date.

The complete schedule of events for the Salem district follows:

- Track
- Southern half, Class A and B—Youngstown Rayen field; H. W. Lamsack—May 13.
  - Northern—Class A (two divisions)—Floyd A. Rowe, at Cleveland.
  - Northern—Class B—at Mentor, Ed. Masonbrink in charge.
- Baseball
- Northern, Class A and B—Cleveland Cullinwood, in charge of Ralph N. Shafer.
  - Southern—Class B—McDonald; A. A. Burkey.
- Golf
- Northern—Class A and B—Cleveland Cullinwood; Ralph N. Shafer.
  - Southern—(Salem competing)—Canton McKinley; T. B. Jackman.
- Tennis
- Northern—Cleveland Heights; W. R. Winters.
  - Southern—(Salem competing)—Canton McKinley; Dwight V. Peabody.

NEW RULES were set for track and field events to be in effect in meets to be held throughout the nation this year. Those announced by Townsend follow:

In hurdle races there is no longer a penalty for the first false start; but a second false start results in disqualification of the offending runner.

Men are to be placed in the order in which any part of their bodies (i. e. "torso") as distinguished from the head, arms, feet or hands crosses the finish line. A competitor falling at the finish is not considered to have finished unless his entire body shall have crossed the finish line.

If standard hurdles are used a man who wins first place in record time shall be credited with his record even though he may have knocked down a hurdle.

Passing under the high jump or pole vault bar, or running across the broad jump take-off line, or such line extended, shall count as a trial.

Neither diving or somersaulting shall be permitted in the high jump.

TOGETHER WITH these important announcements Townsend revealed interesting figures concerning expenses involved in the 1933 state basketball tournament.

Expenses this year totalled $997.91 as compared to costs of $1,496.90 for the 1932 tourney. A comparison of costs for the two years follows:

1932-33 Tourney
Tourney expenses	$ 997.91
Competing teams	$1,524.80
To state association	$1,158.24
Total	$3,680.95
1931-32 Tourney
Tourney expenses	$1,496.90
Competing teams	$2,892.80
Food shooters	$ 81.45
To state association	$3,644.80
Total	$8,116.95

Tobacco Chewing Habit Halted By Secretary's Wife

(By United Press)

ATLANTA, April 13.—How Bill Smith, road secretary of the Washington Senators and one-time manager of the Atlanta Crackers, stopped chewing tobacco was related here this morning when the Senators tangled with the Crackers in a three game exhibition series.

He visited the home of Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, one night after joining the Griffith clan, he said, and was chatting with Griffith on the front porch, "smutting tobacco juice out over the banister."

"It seemed," he said, "that Mrs. Griffith had some pet flowers or shrubbery or something out there, and she came out on the porch and saw what was going on and she made a speech I have not forgotten yet."

"So I said, 'Mrs. Griffith, I will now stop this habit and do my bit to make the world better and more beautiful.' So I stopped. I think I feel better, but the ball games don't seem quite the same."

EXHIBITION GAMES

(By Associated Press)

New York (A) 6; Yale 0.
Newark (A) 6; Rutgers 1.
Philadelphia (N) 2; Montreal (L) 2, the nine innings.
Jersey City (L) 3; Black Yankees 1.

Fight Results

LOS ANGELES—Young Tommy, Manila, outpointed Pete Sanstol, Oslo, Norway, (-9).
INDIANAPOLIS—Sammy (Kid) Slaughter, Terre Haute, Ind., outpointed Rocky (Kid) Baker, Anderson, Ind., (-10).
Indianapolis, knocked out Buster Carman, Louisville (2).
PORTLAND, Ore.—Freedy Miller, Cincinnati, outpointed Andy Budny, Portland, (10).

Wrapped in Gloom

Maybe it's the thought that this is possibly his last season as an active player that makes Babe Ruth's countenance anything but cheerful. Here is the one and only Bambino wrapped in blankets and gloom at the start of the first home game of the 1933 season at Yankee Stadium, New York.

PLAY GOLF

with Seymour Dunn—Creator of Champions

Consistency in play rather than occasional brilliancy is what generally wins in golf; and I know of nothing that will contribute more towards steadiness in play than exercising care to finish each and every stroke correctly.

It is true that many star performers do not seem to take pains in this matter, but that is nothing to their credit and their apparent carelessness in this matter is not really as bad as it seems because they do at least pass through a fairly correct finish position.

The regrettable part is that the star performers do not end their strokes in a more orthodox pose. If they did their golf form would not only look much better, but they would be very much better examples for students of the game to study and to copy.

Harry Vardon was always looked upon as a great stylist. His form was admired by everybody. This was largely because of the correctness of his pose at the end of his stroke. Certainly it is better to end your strokes correctly than incorrectly, for the simple reason that in order to finish a stroke correctly one must swing correctly. You could hardly swing incorrectly and finish in a correct pose. If you form the habit of a correct finish you automatically form the habit of making a correct swing.

The principle points which constitute a correct finish in the full swing are: 1.—At least two-thirds of the body weight should be on the left leg. 2.—Your head should be in approximately the same place it occupied at the address. 3.—The club shaft should be in a horizontal position over the left shoulder and parallel with the line of play. This position of the club would be in keeping with what is known as the oblique plane of the swing.

For short back swings the club head should stop at a corresponding position at the finish and as long as it lies in the oblique plane of the swing its position is correct no matter what point it may stop at. Finish every stroke you play correctly and you will not only see your game improve but you will become a much more consistently accurate player.

Wrestling Results

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Sam Stein, 264, Newark threw Steve Znosky, 298, Poland 35-39.
CHICAGO—Jim Browning, 226, Verona, Mo., threw Ed "Strangler" Lewis, 265, Los Angeles, 63-32.

Grid Seach Golf Star

DURHAM, N. C.—Wallace Wade, head football coach at Duke and moulder of Rose Bowl winning teams at University of Alabama, is much better than the average golfer, shooting in the low 70's occasionally.

HELENA, Mont.—The Montana Livestock Commission has set aside a bounty fund of $15,000 to be paid hunters killing coyotes this year. A fee of $250 per animal is offered by the commission. Bounties of $25 per head are offered for wolves and cougars. All three types of predatory animals have caused heavy stock losses, as well as killing many deer, in recent years.

PITT TO HOLD FOOTBALL MEET

Annual Clinic Scheduled On May 6; Sutherland In Charge

PITTSBURGH, April 12.—The University of Pittsburgh's second annual football clinic will be held on the morning of Saturday, May 6, the same day selected the running of its 25th annual interscholastic track and field meet, the oldest scholastic track and field carnival in the district.

Dr. Jock Sutherland announced that the program of the clinic will follow very closely that of last year, which proved so very popular among the hundred or so high school mentors who attended.

It will last from 8:30 until 1:30, with Sutherland being assisted by his entire coaching staff, who will give individual instruction in the play of the various positions. The discussion of the various phases of line and backfield play will be carried on at the same time, each assistant coach having his own class in various parts of the practice field.

The open forum idea, which made such a hit last spring, will be carried out, any high school player or coach being permitted to stop in at any time and ask questions.

The latter part of the clinic will be devoted to a discussion of team play, at which time two picked squads will go through the basic formations of the Sutherland system, walking through a half-dozen essential plays.

Invitations, and only those receiving them will be admitted, will be sent out today or tomorrow, along with the entry blanks for the track meet.

The latter event, incidentally, is attracting more attention than was hoped for, and there will be appreciable less of entries in the meet. Over 40 schools have already signed their intentions of entering, which is high for this early date.

Denison Admitted To Ohio Conference

GRANVILLE, April 12.—Admission of Denison university to membership in the Ohio conference was announced by Walter J. Livingston, director of athletics.

However, he said, the school will continue athletic relations with Ohio Wesleyan, Wittenberg and Cincinnati in the Buckeye conference, from which it withdrew last fall.

Old-Time All-Star Club Selected by Hans Wagner

CINCINNATI, April 12.—The two great examples of how not to bat, said Honus Wagner today, are Honus Wagner and Ty Cobb.

The books on baseball, said the famous shortstop of 35 years ago, say "To choke the bat is the thing the batter must not do."

"Ty Cobb always choked his bat," he went on, "and so did I. We managed to get away with it, and I guess we were what you might call guess hitters. Somehow or other we always managed to knock the pill where the other fellows weren't."

The big "Flying Dutchman," here as coach with the Pittsburgh Pirates, said present day players probably are "a little better than we were in the old days but I don't know whether they steal more bases than the old-timers."

Wagner then named what he considers the ideal team of old-timers in the National league. He headed it with Willie Keeler at right field because of his ability to "hit 'em where they ain't."

He put Clarence Beaumont, former Pirate, at center field because he made the record of six infield hits in a single game. He put Fred

Spencer, Cleveland's New Catcher, Introducing The Indians Certain To Help Indians In Race

Like the Royal Mounted Police, General Manager Billy Evans usually gets his man. . . . Billy has the habit of never giving up on a player he likes. . . . It took him two years to land Bib Falk. . . . He dickered for three years with Chicago before he secured Billy Kamm. . . . Four years were spent in trying to land Bill Cissell. . . . Eventually he got his man, in fact all three.

Now comes Roy Spencer, who succeeds Luke Sewell as first string catcher of the Indians. . . . Three years ago Evans tried to land Spencer. . . . He had just been declared a free agent at Indianapolis. Evans wanted Spencer, but Griffith of Washington, wanted him worse.

Spencer received a bonus of $17,500 to sign a Washington contract. His salary for the year was $7,500. . . . A total of $25,000, not a bad salary for six months' work. . . . Spencer ranked second to Mickey Cochrane in 1931. . . . Injuries last season greatly handicapped his play. . . . A great loyalty to Manager Walter Johnson was another handicap, it later proved. . . . Shortstop Cronin and Catcher Roy Spencer just couldn't agree. . . . Spencer thought Cronin was playing to the grandstand by trying to manage the ball club instead of letting Johnson do it. . . . Several run-ins took place.

Spencer is the kind of a guy who speaks plain English. . . . It looked as if the Marquis of Queensbury rules would have to be invoked to settle the disagreement. . . . The boys quit speaking to each other. . . . Next we find President Clark Griffith giving Walter Johnson his release as manager. . . . Who would lead the club? . . . Griffith crossed up everybody by naming Joe Cronin. . . . It was a cinch that Roy Spencer would be let out with Cronin manager. . . . There wasn't room on the same club for the two. . . . The club that would get Spencer would have to give Washington a catcher of like ability. . . . Cleveland.

Cinci Announces '33 Grid Schedule

(By International News Service)

CINCINNATI, April 1.—University of Cincinnati athletic authorities today announced the signing of Rio Grande college for the opening football game of the 1933 season here. The game will be played September 30, at night.

Rio Grande was signed to replace Wilmington college, which dropped intercollegiate football after the schedule had been prepared.

Savoldi Suspended By Indiana Unit

(By Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS, April 12.—Al G. Feeney, Indiana athletic commissioner, has sent letters to athletic commissioners of other states affiliated with the National Wrestling association notifying them that Joe Savoldi has been suspended in this state.

Feeney announced yesterday he would suspend Savoldi if the former Notre Dame fullback failed to appear for a match scheduled in Evansville last night with Pat O'Shocker as an opponent. Savoldi was not on hand for the match and the suspension was ordered.

Largest Throng to See Yanks Face Red Sox; Indians Battle Tigers

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 12.—Into the forefront of the sports picture bounced Major league baseball today, ready to combat the tide of depression with a flood of base hits and the tightest pennant fights in years.

The annual opening day gamble with the weather man looked, in the overnight forecasts, like a victory on points for baseball. There was threat of rain in Philadelphia, Boston and New York, but the other five cities where inaugurals were scheduled—Detroit, Washington, St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati—anticipated reasonably clear, if coolish, weather.

Yanks Oppose Red Sox

With the eight-game program intact, an aggregate attendance in the neighborhood of 200,000, was in prospect. The largest throngs, 40,000 apiece, were indicated at New York where the Yankees open against the Red Sox, and at Chicago, where the Cubs, national champions, entertained the Cardinals. For the others, crowds of from 12,000 to 25,000 were expected.

In keeping with the times, Major league magnates have instituted the most rigid economies but accompanied these with a series of wholesale player trades that should arouse new interest in the game and create a better balance in both circuits.

The world champion Yankees rule as favorites in the American league field but anticipate a much harder battle than a year ago. Washington and the Athletics seem destined to be the chief Yankee antagonists with Cleveland, Detroit and the Chicago White Sox in the next group.

Ruth Ready to Play

Babe Ruth, sore throat and all, was ready to take his usual post in right field for the Yankees and demonstrate that he's far from through.

Beer was to be sold in the parks at New York, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Chicago.

The "dope" on the national race found the Pirates, Cubs, Cardinals, Dodgers and Phillies set to go places, with the Pittsburgh boys holding a slight edge.

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

Radio hours that actually run 60 minutes are in network ascendancy again.

While the hour program didn't disappear altogether in the rush to put on 15 and 30 minute features, it waned in popularity. Now the cycle is reversing itself.

Most recent of the new features which provide a straight 60-minute run are the Hour Glass of Music, the Weekend Revue and the Land Where Good Songs Go.

Myrt's disappearance in the WABC-CBS sketch has a lot more behind it than is apparent. Myrt, who is Myrtle Vail, actually is in a Chicago hospital recovering from serious injuries, suffered in a real automobile accident. The decision to "write her out" of the sketch through a mysterious "disappearance" was done so that the show could go on.

Eddie Cantor's hour is to be devoted to the variety type of show when Cantor stops for the summer in two weeks. The WABC-CBS schedule for Ted Lewis' orchestra had to be rearranged so that the broadcasts would fit in properly with his local show. They are now listed for 11:30 p. m., Mondays and Thursdays.

Ohio Police Hunt Two Akron Slayers

(By Associated Press) AKRON, April 12—Two men who killed Joseph Papp, 42-year-old grocer, in the manner of Chicago's "St. Valentine day massacre," were hunted today by police of northern Ohio.

The young killers, with pistols drawn, invaded a pool hall near the Papp Brothers grocery store where Papp was playing cards with six companions, shortly before midnight last night.

One of the youths commanded Papp's companion to "walk back to that wall and stand there with your backs to us."

He then ordered Papp to "turn around."

As the grocer faced about, eight bullets were pumped into his head and back. The youths, who had held their hands over their faces when they entered, fled in a car in which another man waited.

Police theorized that the killing was the outgrowth of rivalry for the Akron corn sugar trade and broadcast a description of three men known to them. They said Papp and his brother, Paul, had been selling corn sugar at their store for years and that a few months ago they moved their corn sugar plant to Barberton.

Among the men sought for questioning, police said, was one who formerly was known as the "Corn Sugar King" of Akron. The other two hunted have police records.

Comedy Film Here Thursday; Baxter Story Concludes Today

FOR eleven months the mystery-comedy, "Whistling In The Dark," amused followers of the Broadway stage. Now screengoers have an opportunity to observe the antics of Ernest Truex, star of the original play and that clever comedienne, Una Merkel, in the riotous talkie version coming to the State Thursday to play the one day only....

Is Clever Satire
This satire of crook-melodrama is as funny as anything to be seen on the screen for some time.... An author of mystery stories and his fiancee; a band of crooks who capture them and compel the author to devise for them a "perfect crime"; a tube of poisoned toothpaste; and a rather peculiar method of turning a radio into a telephone are some of the ingredients that make up the plot around which the chilling suspense and laughs of the film are woven.

Cast Of Good Players
Truex who has come to the screen after years as one of the brightest of comedy stars on the New York and London stages, is said to give one of the funniest performances one could imagine and Miss Merkel would run the best of them a close race when it comes to comedy.... John Miljan, Johnny Hines, Edward Arnold, C. Henry Gordon and Joseph Cawthorn are others prominent in the cast....

WHAT happens when a charming young lady detective sets out to use her feminine wiles to ensnare a suave gentleman crook is the central theme of "Dangerously Yours," concluding its run this evening at the State theater....

Warner Baxter is starred in the role of the society thief, and Miriam Jordan, his leading lady in "Six Hours To Live," and a recent recruit from the London stage has the part of the girl-sleuth employed by a certain insurance company to protect the jewels of its clients....

Herbert Mundin, popular English comedian, is cast as Baxter's assistant and he contributes greatly to the hilarity of this fast moving and interesting comedy drama.... Other important roles are handled by Florence Roberts, Nella Walker, Arthur Hoyt and Will Davidson....

Bank Fund Probe Ordered by Fulton

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, O., April 12—The records of the 66 state banks in the hands of conservators will be checked closely to determine if persons connected with them withdrew large sums of money in recent months.

Such inquiry was ordered by Superintendent of Banks Ira J. Fulton, who instructed the conservators to notify prosecuting attorneys of any evident or actual violation of criminal law in connection with the operation of any bank.

The order was contained in letters sent to the conservators by Fulton last night. Supplementing the superintendent's instructions, Governor White sent letters to three of the conservators urging prosecution of persons suspected of irregular handling of bank funds.

The governor addressed his communications to Oscar J. Cox, the Union Trust company, Cleveland; Sidney B. Gongdon, the Guardian Trust company, Cleveland, and John R. Eckler, First-Central Trust company, Akron.
